2. Citations and explanations (Rule 70.7)

- D1 = "Optimal Multidimensional Bit-Rate Control for Video Communication" (Reed et al.)
IEEE TRANSACTIONS ON IMAGE PROCESSING, Vol. 11, No. 8, pp 873-885, August 2002
- D2 = US 6091776 A (LINZER) 18 July 2000
- D2 = WO 99/52295 A (SARNOFF CORPORATION) 14 October 1999
- D3 = "Minimax Frame Rate Control Using a Rate-Distortion Optimized Wavelet Coder"
(Yang & Hemami) Proceedings of the IEEE Int. Conference on Image Processing October 1999
- D4 = US 5 872 598 A (LEGALL et al.) 16 February 1999
- D5 = US 5 717 464 A (PERKINS et al.) 10 February 1998

The citations appear to be silent at least in respect to determining desired frame rates on the basis of available computational resources and determining a target buffer level based on the desired frame rate and position of the inter-frame with respect to the I-frames claimed in the application.

Available computational resources for video encoding may have been generally known to present a problem in the art at the priority date of the application. Buffer considerations are also discussed in at least some of the citations. However, there is nothing in any of the citations, either individually or in combination, disclosing the above specific steps of the claimed invention.

Therefore, the subject matter of the claims is new and meets the requirements of Article 33(2) PCT with regard to novelty. Furthermore, the subject matter of the claims is not obvious and meets the requirements of Article 33(3) PCT with regard to inventive step. The subject matter of the claims is also industrially applicable.
